TV on DVD pick of the week

Lions Gate is finally releasing the television series "Moonlighting: Seasons One and Two." This series, launched on ABC in 1985, is a wonderful tribute to the romantic comedy films of the '50s.

A charming Bruce Willis and a tolerable Cybill Shepherd star as a pair of bickering members of a detective agency. Their banter is far more interesting than any of their cases.

The show was a headache for producers. Episodes often weren't finished until just hours before the telecast. That all just adds to the charm of this wonderful series.
